The star has his work cut out for him in generous measure. He appears as a hero on two continents. He has two love romances—one on casc continent. But in both romances he has the same rival—who, by the way, proves himself.

The story, opening in Scotland, is shifted to northwest Canada. It is fifted with deeds of daring, of course—or it would not be a Buck Jones drama. It presents exciting sursuit, fierce persons at confidence in the Court.

Philip Hale, the west known Boston critic, wrote as follows: Erika Morini's recipal gave great pleasure. Her playing yas charming and un-affected. Miss Mortal's tone is rich and fall of truly beautiful quality, Her technical proficiency in these days of as-tenishing young fiddlers is taken for granted, but technical proficiency may exist without tonal charm. Erika Morini casts a spell not only by the quality of her tone, mellifuous but not effeminate, for it has body as well as beauty and commands and holds attention by the thoughtfulness of her phrasing by the refinement and elo-quence of her lyric expression and by the dash of her brayura. REBEARSALS ARE PROCEEDING

FOR K. OF C. PLAY MONDAY To anyone casually passing the T. A. B. hall Wednesday evening, where final rehearsals of "All Aboard" are ing held, they no doubt wondered what was going on inside, on account of the loud laughter, which could be heard for quite some distance. The John B. Rogers Producing company, which is producing the play, to be given under the ausplees of the K. of C. and the Ladies of Colum-bus, realizes the necessity of giving the public a show which will equal any propublic a show which will equal any professional play, and has taken a long step forward by forgetting the time worn idea "that any old thing will do" for amateur players. The fact that a growing element in the theatregoing population is demanding a better class of plays, tha same element is asking for the improvement and execution in amateur productions and responding to this demand the above company has built their plays along real professional lines. The play will be shown at the Davis theatre Monday, afternoon and evening. Jan. 3th. The demand for seats has been great and this should be a warning to those intending to go to get their reserved seats now, and not wait until it is too late.
